When Ember came out of the Grove to her leafy. small, bulging bottle. She poured me a drink. It had alcohol in it -- not much -- but there was. Men and women of the Hand had joined together on Roke a hundred or more years ago, forming a league of mages. Proud and secure in their powers, they had sought to teach others to band together in secret against the war makers and slave takers until they could rise openly against them. Women had always been leaders in the league, said Ember, and women, in the guise of salve sellers and net makers and such, had gone from Roke to other lands around the Inmost Sea, weaving a wide, fine net of resistance. Even now there were strands and knots of that net left. Medra had come on one of those traces first in Anieb's village, and had followed them since. But they had not led him here. Since the raid, Roke Island had isolated itself wholly, sealed itself inside powerful spells of protection woven and rewoven by the wise women of the island, and had no commerce with any other people. "We can't save them," Ember said. "We couldn't save ourselves.". Medra knew the danger of repeatedly taking any form but his own, but he was shaken and weakened by. she must have noticed it..no desire to travel and meet other kinds of people, or to see the world, saying he could summon.
