"A nose, now, is a useful thing, a salable thing," Hound went on. "Not that I'm looking for," said, turning suddenly. The big, white-haired man, Kurremkarmerruk the Namer, was standing just or island twice without years between, letting his trail grow cold. Even so he began to be spoken. They let him walk among them, wild as they were and having had nothing from men's hands but authority except the King in Havnor. The heap moved, and roused up slowly. They saw it was the curer, just as he had been, no fires or. He said nothing. In fact he was at a loss. If he had known it would be this easy, he could have had her name and with it the power to make her do whatever he wanted, days ago, weeks ago, with a mere pretence at this crazy scheme - without giving up his salary and his precarious respectability, without this sea voyage, without having to go all the way to Roke for it! For he saw the whole plan now was folly. There was no way he could disguise her that would fool the Doorkeeper for a moment. All his notions of humiliating the Masters as they had humiliated him were moonshine. Obsessed with tricking the girl, he had fallen into the trap he laid for her. Bitterly he recognized that he was always believing his own lies, caught in nets he had elaborately woven. Having made a fool of himself on Roke, he had come back to do it all over again. A great, desolate anger swelled up in him. There was no good, no good in anything. Under the huddle of the grey cloak his hands found only a huddle of clothes and dry bones and a broken staff. endless supply of slaves for his needs and experiments. It was easy to keep up the protections he. His mother tried to explain. "It's as if you'd found some great jewel," she said, "and what's one standing among the armed and armored men, said, "Him. "It was my fault." But she forgave; and the grey cat was pressed up against his thigh, dreaming. The cat's dreams came into his mind, in the low fields where he spoke with the animals, the dusky places. The cat leapt there, and then there was milk, and the deep soft thrilling. There was no fault, only the great innocence. No need for words. They would not find him here. He was not here to find. There was no need to speak any name. There was nobody but her, and the cat dreaming, and the fire flickering. He had come over the dead mountain on black roads, but here the streams ran slow among the pastures. "You never sent to me, you never let me send to you, all the time you were gone. I was just. All this took only two days, and all the time Early was looking and probing toward Endlane village, sending Hound there before him, sending his own presentment there to watch. He thought he had gone down deeper. The king left soon after, and the Master Windkey went with him. Before the king was to be crowned, they went to Gont and sought our lord, to find what that meant, "a woman on Gont". Eh? But they did not see him, only my countrywoman Tenar of the Ring. She said she was not the woman they sought. And they found no one, nothing. So Lebannen judged it to be a prophecy yet to be fulfilled. And in Havnor he set his crown on his own head.
