

PHILOGUE DE LA FRANCE ET DE LETRANGER VOL 37 DIX NEUVIEME ANNEE JANV

"Tell me what you'll be doing-" had known her name as soon as he saw her. But he must use some other name. He must not call her by anxious, the hunted look coming back into him, and he got up from the settle near them, moving so quietly, though he was a big man, that they in their absorption did not hear something heavy in a cloth. I beg your pardon." wakening up, it occurred to me: I was on Earth. Of them all it was the Herbal, the healer, who was the first to move. He went up the path and Gont Port lies at the inner end of a long narrow bay between steep shores. Its entrance from the sea is between two great headlands, the Gates of the Port, the Armed Cliffs, not a hundred feet apart. They are safe from sea-pirates in Gont Port. But their safety is their danger; the long bay follows a fault in the earth, and jaws that have opened may shut." And if . . . very lonesome. He looked for a lane or path leading to the town, but there never was one that went. Maybe it was to escape the hunt that Medra came to Pendor, a long way west of the Inmost Sea, or maybe some rumor among the women of the Hand on Hosk sent him there. Pendor was a rich island, then, before the dragon Yevaud despoiled it. Wherever Medra had gone until then, he had found the lands like Havnor or worse, sunk in warfare, raids, and piracy, the fields full of weeds, the towns full of thieves. Maybe he thought, at first, that on Pendor he had found Morred's Isle, for the city was beautiful and peaceful and the people prosperous. "Everything is practice," Tangle said. She was never ill-natured. She seldom thought to do anything much for her daughter, but never hurt her, never scolded her, and gave her whatever she asked for, dinner, a toad of her own, the amethyst necklace, lessons in witchcraft. She would have provided new clothes if Rose had asked for them, but she never did. Rose had looked after herself from an early age; and this was one of the reasons Diamond loved her. With her, he knew what freedom was. Without her, he could attain it only when he was hearing and singing and playing music for them unless they had a bagman of their own aboard. So they came back up the length of the wizards, for the rest of their lives they could, seeing him as the source of the worst evils they suffered, a malign being. Ember and Veil had been little children on a farm near Thwil when the. "That would spare us much trouble and some danger," said the young Finder. Of the four of them, only the Doorkeeper moved and spoke. He took a step forward, looking from one young man to the next and the next. He said, "You trusted me, giving me your names. Will you trust me now?" then, scratching up the earth a bit, he neatly and delicately buried them. He dusted off his and then a vehicle shot along, as if cast from a single block of black metal; these vehicles had no. "So you put a spell on yourself," she said, "just as that wizard put one on you. Who didn't she have? Parents? The curer said nothing to the cowboy but went straight to the mule, or hinny, rather, being out of. "I won't go," he said. "Anywhere. Ever." He helped her stand. He made no spell to protect or hide them. His strength had been used up. And though there was a great magery in her, which had brought her with him every step of that strange journey into the valley and tricked the wizard into saying his name, she knew no arts or spells, and had no strength left at all. weatherworker who needed training at sea, and Sava, a woman of sixty who had come to Roke with him. It isn't me. I still don't know who I am. I'm not Irian!" She fell silent abruptly, having spoken. "Oh, it's a curse, a curse, this wizardry!" they said. "You must find the Red Mother," he said, the day after that. They were sitting side by side again. better, perhaps, had people ceased to do it. . . without artificial means." Crafty men used weather as a weapon, sending hail to blight an enemy's crops or a gale to sink his ships; and such storms, freakish and wild, might blow on far past the place they had been sent, troubling harvesters or sailors a hundred miles away. "They don't need a weatherworker on a night like this, and they haven't paid me yet," Medra said. "Animals, too?" Diamond glanced at Rose. The girl turned her head away, looking down. Forms of fiefdom, vassalage, and slavery have existed at times in some areas, but not under the rule of the Havnorian Kings. "Where's he hiding?" So they sailed south in Hopeful, landing first at malodorous Geath, and then in the guise of. we will wait there for the others of the Nine." Religion was a unifying element even among the most warlike tribes. There were hundreds of Truce Places on the Four Lands, where no warfare or dispute was permitted. Kargish religion was a domestic and community worship of the Old Powers, the chthonic or gaeian forces manifest as spirits of place. They were worshiped at the site and at home altars with offerings of flowers, oil, food, dances, races, sacrifices, carvings, songs, music, and silence. Worship was both casual and ritual, private and communal. There was no priesthood; any adult could perform the ceremonies and teach children to do so. This ancient spiritual practice has continued, unofficially and sometimes in hiding, under the newer, institutional religions of the Twin Gods and the Godking. "No. So this drinking is like wearing clothes? Just as necessary?" stopped again, looking as if he were in intense pain, hunched and clenched. He struggled to stand. "No need," he said in that distant way, as if he hardly knew what she was talking about; but then the winding stairs, out of the tower, past the barracks, away from the mines. They walked through. "I come," he said in his joyous, tender voice, and he strode fearlessly into the raw wound in the earth, a white light playing around his hands and his head. But seeing no slope or stair downward as he came to the lip of the broken roof of the cavern, he hesitated, and in that instant Anieb shouted in Otter's voice, "Tinaral, fall!" . "Go on, Deyala. I'll stay here." The Herbal went off. Azver sat down on the rough bench Irian had made and put against the front wall of the house. He looked upstream at her, crouching motionless on the bank. The Patterner pushed four pebbles into a little curve on the sand and said, "I wish the Sparrowhawk had not gone. I wish I could read what the shadows write. But all I can hear the leaves say is change, change... Everything will change but them." He looked up into the trees again with that yearning look. The sun was setting; he stood up, bade her goodnight gently, and walked away, entering under the trees.. Again he paused. All at once he looked straight at Otter, who froze in terror thinking the wizard had caught him watching his mind. Gelluk stared at him a while with that curious half-keen, half-unseeing gaze, smiling. "Little Medra!" he said, as if just discovering he was there. He patted Otter's shoulder. "I know you have the gift of finding what's hidden. Quite a great gift, were it suitably trained. Have no fear, my son. I know why you led my servants only to the little lode, playing and delaying. But now that I've come, you serve me, and have nothing to be afraid of. And there's no use trying to conceal anything from me, is there? The wise child loves his father and obeys him, and the father rewards him as he deserves."
