or another he came at last to Geath in the Ninety Isles. "Magic won't die on Roke," said Veil. "On Roke all spells are strong. So said Ath himself. And you. He drew back, staring, and made a fierce motion of his hand that brushed away the stream in a spray like a fountain blown by the wind. The gash in the earth grew deeper, revealing the ledge of mica. With a sharp rending crack the glittering stone split apart. Under it was darkness. of Havnor. He would not see it again unless he went through that narrow passage. Then he would see. "Oh, it's a curse, a curse, this wizardry!" they said. The king left soon after, and the Master Windkey went with him. Before the king was to be crowned, they went to Gont and sought our lord, to find what that meant, "a woman on Gont". Eh? But they did not see him, only my countrywoman Tenar of the Ring. She said she was not the woman they sought. And they found no one, nothing. So Lebannen judged it to be a prophecy yet to be fulfilled. And in Havnor he set his crown on his own head. returned to. He had been away from Planet Earth for ten years space-time. But that was 127 years. Then they were all silent. He tried to remember how to make light. Anieb said to him, plaintively, "Can't you make the light?" But he could not. He crawled in the dark till the sound of water was loud and the rocks under him were wet, and groped till his hand found water. He drank, and tried to crawl away from the wet rocks afterward, because he was very cold. One arm hurt and had no strength in it. Writing is said to have been invented by the Rune Masters, the first great wizards of the. root cellar that night and the nights after. Neighbors who came at last to bury the rotting bodies. appear as formidable but feeling beings, whose anger at the invading human fleet is justified by. mainland. And then it was over. He broke. Like a stick breaking. He was broken. But he fled away. gossip. nearby. He did not know what Ember wanted of him; he hoped she meant to teach him, to begin to. Panting, she struggled to break loose, but I did not feel it, it was only when she began to groan. Tuly shared it with him for a long time, since she could see her son only by lying to her husband, which she found hard to do. She wept to think of Diamond hungry, sleeping hard. Cold nights of autumn were a misery to her. But as time went on and she heard him spoken of as Diamond the sweet singer of the West of Havnor, Diamond who had harped and sung to the great lords in the Tower of the Sword, her heart grew lighter. And once, when Golden was down 'at South Port, she and Tangle took a donkey cart and drove over to Easthill, where they heard Diamond sing the Lay of the Lost Queen, while Rose sat with them, and Little Tuly sat on Tuly's knee. And if not a happy ending, that was a true joy, which may be enough to ask for, after all. HOUND STAYED IN ENDLANE. He could make a living as a finder there, and he liked the tavern, and. words of apology, of thanks, so as not to leave this way -- but I couldn't. Had she been afraid only. "To the city.". Across the hurrying flow of people, above their heads, I noticed a window in the distance. The True Runes used in the Archipelago embody words of the Speech of the Making. True Runes are not symbols only, but reifactors: they can be used to bring a thing or condition into being or bring about an event. To write such a rune is to act. The power of the action varies with the circumstances. Most of the True Runes are found only in ancient texts and lore-books, and used only by wizards trained in their use; but a good many of them, such as the symbol written on the door lintel to protect a house from fire, are in common use, familiar to unlearned people. leave him to breathe the fumes of quicksilver in that highest vault till he died... But when his. Crow cocked his head. houses, merchants, and pirates, any who could hire soldiers and wizards called himself a lord. This harmony generally prevailed through the reign of Maharion. In the Dark Time, with no control over wizardly powers and widespread misuse of them, magic came into general disrepute. ignorant superstition, practiced by women, paid for by peasants. "Nais. . . how is it. . . ?" I stammered. "You take a complete stranger and. . .". "It does not know death," he said, but he spoke in his own language, and they did not understand him. He was, as far as Otter could see, well-meaning and honest. "If you won't. He lived always on Roke, for it's there that all knowledge of magic comes and is kept. And he had no desire to travel and meet other kinds of people, or to see the world, saying he could summon all the world to come to him-which was true. Maybe that's where the danger of that art lies. farewell, knowing that with the last, dying sound more than the song would end. The bright colors of the women's clothes I had by now learned to accept, but the men. Since the coronation of King Lebannen and the restoration of the High Courts and Councils in Havnor Great Port, Roke has remained without an archmage. It appears that this office, not originally part of the governance of the school or of the Archipelago, is no longer useful or appropriate, and that Ged, whom many call the greatest of the arch-mages, may have been the last. He said, "I lost my way. Have I come to the villager?" His voice was hoarse and harsh, a beggar's. Not paying attention. But all. obstinate, and, in defense of his passion, brave. He had defied Losen's power, years before, going. of flowers, which I inhaled eagerly. Cherry blossom? No, not cherry blossom..with three warm eggs. When he was a child he had liked to walk in mud. He remembered enjoying the moving in a line: Medra would have betrayed Roke to Havnor, as the wizard they never named had betrayed it to chance to begin to wean the lad from his mother. She as a woman would cling, but he as a man must often have brown or even blond hair and light eyes; the men are often bearded. Their language and he reached out towards Yaved, towards the ache, the suffering. As he came closer to it he felt a great strength flow into him from the west, as if Silence had taken him by the hand after all. Through that link he could send his own strength, the Mountain's strength, to help. I didn't tell him I wasn't coming back, he thought, his last words in Hardic, his last grief, for he was in the bones of the mountain now. He knew the arteries of fire, and the beat of the great heart. He knew what to do. It was in no tongue of man that he said, "Be quiet, be easy. There now, there. Hold fast. So, there. We can be easy." In the rage of his agony the Enemy raised up a great wave and sent it speeding to overwhelm the island of Solea. Elfarran knew this, as she knew the moment of Morred's death. She bade her people take to their boats; then, the poem says, "She took her small harp in her hands," and in the hour of waiting for the destroying wave that only Morred might have stilled, she made the song called The Lament for the White Enchanter. The island was drowned beneath the sea, and Elfarran with it. But her boat-cradle of willow wood, floating free, bore their child Serriadh to safety, wearing Morred's pledge, the ring that bore the Rune of Peace. "Were there any women there?" "I'm Gift," she said, a bit flustered, but liking the fellow. "All right, then, Master Hawk. Put." "Yes," he said with a smile. Then he winced and stopped to press his hand against his shin for a moment. "Then to me you are Silence," the wizard said. "You can sleep in the nook under the west window. There's an old pallet in the woodhouse. Air it. Don't bring mice in with it." And he stalked off towards the Overfell, angry with the boy for coming and with himself for giving in; but it was not anger that made his heart pound. Striding along he could stride, then with the seawind pushing at him always from the left and the early sunlight on the sea out past the vast shadow of the mountain, he thought of the Mages of Roke, the masters of the art magic, the professors of mystery and power. "He was too much for 'em, was he? And he'll be too much for me," he thought, and smiled. He was a peaceful man, but he did not mind a bit of danger..up most of his mind, and most of what we have.
